

Dear readers, dear authors,

Let me begin by wishing you all a happy and prosperous 2022. I hope that your cooperation with the journal Promet – Traffic&Transportation will continue to intensify this year and that you will recognize us as a quality platform for publishing your work.

Starting this year, you can already see on our website the updated and further elaborated editorial policy of our journal, which is in line with the COPE principles of transparency and best practice in scholarly publishing. This year, we also plan to introduce a completely new system for submitting and editing articles, as well as redesigning the website. Our aim is to simplify the application process as much as possible and to make the editing process even more transparent and straightforward, both for the authors and for our valued reviewers. In this way, we hope to reduce the publication process to a minimum of time, which is in line with the journal's editorial policy.

The promotion of scientific information, new ideas and original research, as well as communicating research results in a transparent manner, remains our mission. In this sense, I am very pleased that we were able to finish last year with a thematic issue of our journal entitled Logistics Challenges, edited by the excellent scientists Prof. Patricija Bajec and Prof. Ivona Bajor. I am sure that the papers collected and published in this issue by renowned authors will be useful and stimulating for other researchers and potential authors. This is the best demonstration of our effort to publish relevant papers in order to make the journal a source of promotion of scientific ideas and activities in the field of traffic and transport technology.

Many challenges await us along the way. Therefore, we would be pleased if you joined us and supported us in our efforts to achieve our common goals and to continuously improve and develop in the scientific community.

Yours sincerely,

Prof. Doris Novak, Ph.D.

Editor-in-Chief